

Abstract

A device for introducing a suture thread anchor into a bone has a hollow guide sleeve through which the suture thread anchor can be passed. The distal end of the guide sleeve is provided with a contour which makes positioning of the distal end easier. The contour is a point projecting distally from a front annular face of the guide sleeve. A remaining part of the annular face forms a shoulder with the point.